OUR MISSION

breadfortheworld
HAVE FAITH. END HUNGER.

Bread for the World is a collective Christian voice urging our nation's decision makers to end hunger at home and abroad. By changing policies, programs, and conditions that allow hunger and poverty to persist, we provide help and opportunity far beyond the communities where we live.

INSTITUTE

Bread for the World Institute provides policy analysis on hunger and strategies to end it. The Institute educates opinion leaders, policy makers, and the public about hunger in the United States and abroad.

Bread members from across the country gathered for Bread for the World's Lobby Day in June in Washington, D.C., to speak with their representatives in Congress. Members requested their representatives' support for three pieces of legislation related to child nutrition programs, re-authorization of safety-net programs, and food-aid reform.

PRESIDENT'S REVIEW

Laura Elizabeth Pohl/Bread for the World

Rev. David Beckmann
President

Thank you for your involvement in the work of Bread for the World.

Our remarkable success in 2015 was a testament to you and to our 70,000 members, to the thousands of churches across the country, and to our many partners. I give thanks to God for this outpouring of prayer, action, and giving.

The most significant achievement of last year was action by Congress that made tax credits for low-income working families permanent. These tax credits help move more than 16 million Americans out of poverty.

Several of our other legislative victories in 2015 were the result of years of determined advocacy by Bread's members. For example, the African Growth and Opportunity Act received a 10-year reauthorization. More than a decade ago, we began promoting this measure, which was first enacted in 2000.

Other accomplishments grow out of the ongoing research and analysis conducted by Bread for the World Institute. Since 2008, the Institute has provided leadership in highlighting the importance of nutrition during the 1,000 days between pregnancy and age 2. In 2015, both the U.S. Agency for International Development and Congress took big steps to make maternal and child nutrition the foundation of our nation's development assistance.

Another highlight of last year was the visit by Pope Francis to the U.S. in the fall. In preparation for that visit, I traveled twice to Rome, where I was honored to meet with Vatican officials. All of us were inspired by the pope's historic speeches before Congress and the United Nations.

These and other victories in 2015 set the stage for our work in 2016 to move Congress to take action on critical issues: more robust funding for maternal and child nutrition, reauthorization of our nation's child nutrition programs – including school meals and summer feeding.

Leading up to the 2016 general election, Bread for the World – on its own and as part of the Vote to End Hunger coalition – encouraged individuals to ask candidates for president and Congress how they proposed to make ending hunger and poverty a priority. Asking these questions of our future elected leaders increases the chance that our nation will join the rest of the world in working to end hunger and poverty by 2030.

Bread is able to pursue these far-reaching goals because we are on a firm financial footing. Thanks to the success of our Bread Rising campaign and to sound governance by our board of directors, we have the financial stability essential for good planning and thoughtful action.

Thank you for your part in all of these efforts. I hope you will continue to be part of our work together to end hunger. We are indeed poised to bring about the end of widespread hunger both here and around the world.

2015 LEGISLATIVE VICTORIES YOU HELPED MAKE POSSIBLE

Key provisions of the earned income and child tax credits became permanent Congress passed a tax deal that made permanent the 2009 improvements to the earned income tax credit (EITC) and the child tax credit (CTC). This was a victory for low-income workers and will prevent 16 million people – including 8 million children – from falling into or deeper into poverty. Bread members have been working on making these improvements permanent for six years, and they have been a focus of two Offering of Letters campaigns. Aside from health care reform, making the EITC and CTC improvements permanent will do more for Americans living in poverty than any other piece of legislation from the past several years and perhaps even decades.

Successfully supported programs that reduce hunger and poverty in the United States and abroad

- For the fifth year in a row, Bread and its partners beat back proposals to dramatically cut funding for programs that help people struggling with hunger and poverty. In 2015, both the House and Senate passed budget plans that, if enacted, would have cut low-income programs by more than $3 trillion over ten years. And year after year, the U.S. House has passed budgets that cut spending by $5 trillion, finding over two-thirds of the savings by cutting programs that serve people in need. In 2015, not only did we stop these proposals from becoming law, but Congress also passed a budget that alleviates scheduled cuts and increases funding for anti-hunger and anti-poverty programs.
- Congress passed the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015, which prevents most of the sequestration cuts for 2016 and 2017 from taking place. The budget deal replaces the sequestration cuts with a balanced package, which

Joseph Molieri/Bread for the World

2015 LEGISLATIVE VICTORIES YOU HELPED MAKE POSSIBLE

Bread had advocated for. It gives defense and non-defense programs equal relief, and it doesn't find savings by cutting other anti-hunger programs. This is an issue Bread had been working on intensely since 2011. Now, rather than facing continued budget brinksmanship and further cuts to programs assisting people who can least afford it, Congress can turn toward a more proactive agenda.

- Right before adjourning for the year, Congress passed a 2016 omnibus spending bill, which divides up all the funding among the various federal programs. In the end, we won a major victory with that bill on both funding allocations and on preventing bad policy riders from getting attached, such as an increase in cargo preference and mounting roadblocks to resettling Syrian refugees.

Funding for poverty-focused development assistance abroad rose again

- Funding for international poverty-focused development assistance went up $500 million for an overall total of $26.6 billion. This increase is due largely to the ongoing humanitarian crisis in Syria, Yemen, and South Sudan.
- Included in the omnibus appropriations bill was $750 million allocated to address the root causes of hunger, poverty, and violence in Central America, which drive so many migrants to the U.S. without documentation. Bread advocated hard on this issue in 2014, especially because of the surge in unaccompanied children crossing the border.
- Funding for global nutrition programs went up by $10 million. This will support countries hardest hit by malnutrition in the critical 1,000 days between a woman's pregnancy and her child's second birthday to scale up evidence-based, cost-effective nutrition interventions to reduce stunting.

In 2015, Bread for the World helped win a big increase in funding for development assistance focused on poverty. This funding will help improve nutrition for women and children in Latin America and elsewhere.

Joseph Molieri/Bread for the World

2015 LEGISLATIVE VICTORIES YOU HELPED MAKE POSSIBLE

Progress on food-aid reform, including beating back an increase in shipping requirements

- $5 million was appropriated as part of the McGovern-Dole International Food for Education and Child Nutrition Program to purchase food locally where it is needed, reducing shipping costs and time.
- The Food for Peace Reform Act of 2015 was introduced. This legislation would build on reforms to food aid in the fiscal year 2014 omnibus appropriations bill and 2014 farm bill.
- We halted the passage of a provision in a final omnibus spending bill that would have taken away $75 million of food-aid funds to increase the subsidies to the world's biggest shipping companies. If passed, it would have reduced the reach of food-aid programs by 2 million people annually.

The African Growth and Opportunity Act was passed

The African Growth and Opportunity Act was extended for 10 more years. Its reauthorization gives more incentives for businesses to invest and stimulates export-led economic growth in the nearly 40 countries in sub-Saharan Africa that participate in the program. It also expands U.S. technical assistance specifically aimed at businesses that engage women and smallholder farmers.

2015 ADVOCACY OUTCOMES

WHAT BREAD FOR THE WORLD AND ITS PARTNERS ACHIEVED

breadfortheworld
HAVE FAITH. END HUNGER.

Tax Credits

- 16 million Americans, including 8 million children, kept from falling into or deeper into poverty when key provisions of the earned income and child tax credits were made permanent. This is a big, long-time coming victory for low-income workers.

Circle of Protection

- No significant cuts to poverty-focused programs in the appropriations bill for the fifth year in a row.
- Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 protected critical programs like K-12 education; job training; nutrition assistance for seniors; and Head Start. It ended the threat of brinkmanship and put off mandatory sequestration cuts for at least two years.

Poverty-Focused Development Assistance

- $500 million increase in assistance, including more help for Syria, Yemen, and South Sudan.
- $750 million allocated to address the root causes of hunger, poverty, and violence in Central America.
- $10 million increase in funding for global maternal and child nutrition programs.
- Fifth consecutive year of increases.

Food-Aid Reform

- 2 million people can still receive U.S. food aid because we blocked a provision that would have shifted funds from food to subsidies for shipping companies.
- $5 million in McGovern-Dole Program will allow nutritious food to be purchased locally, reducing shipping costs and time.

Africa Trade

- African Growth and Opportunity Act extended for 10 years.
- Expanded U.S. technical assistance for strengthening the trade capacity for women farmers and other smallholder farmers.

Laying the groundwork for future successes

- Congress failed to carry out the five-year reauthorization of the nation's child nutrition programs. But Bread's 2015 Offering of Letters: Feed Our Children did help introduce several bills that would improve school meals and make summer feeding programs more accessible.

- By the end of 2015, Bread members had exceeded the goal of 100 congressional sponsors for the Global Food Security Act, which would boost agricultural productivity by investing in smallholder farmers.

OTHER SUCCESSES

The Sustainable Development Goals were adopted

Bread celebrated the adoption in September 2015 of a new set of 17 goals that succeed the 2000-2015 Millennium Development Goals. With the SDGs, the leaders of the world committed themselves to freeing the world of hunger and poverty, reducing inequality, and improving health in all countries. As the SDGs were being developed, Bread for the World Institute co-led an international coalition to integrate nutrition into the goals. The coalition also pushed for a stand-alone goal on ending hunger and malnutrition. Bread is pleased that both of these principles were implemented in the new set of goals.

Presidential candidates made video statements on hunger and poverty

Bread for the World, as part of the Circle of Protection, secured short videos from ten of the presidential candidates in the primary races in which they spoke about hunger and poverty. While these issues had not been central tenets of any of their campaigns, the fact that nearly all of the candidates had made at least one statement about hunger and poverty is unprecedented and shows more direct attention paid to poverty by presidential hopefuls than the country has seen in several decades. Bread's goal is that the next president will make hunger, poverty, and opportunity a priority, and that Congress and the president together will put the country on track to end hunger in the U.S. and worldwide by 2030.

Connections with the World Bank

The World Bank is building new partnerships with faith communities around the goal of ending extreme poverty by 2030. Bread for the World participated in a meeting between World Bank President Jim Yong Kim and faith groups from around the world and contributed to an interfaith statement on the challenge of ending poverty by 2030.

ORGANIZATIONAL ACHIEVEMENTS

- In September 2015, Bread for the World convened the “Interfaith Religious Leaders Summit – End Hunger by 2030.” The gathering of more than 100 religious leaders took place the day before Pope Francis addressed Congress and met with President Obama. The faith leaders signed a pledge committing themselves to changing U.S. national priorities, which was made public in various media outlets.
- Bread for the World Institute released its annual Hunger Report for 2016: *The Nourishing Effect: Ending Hunger, Improving Health, Reducing Inequality. The report examines the connections between hunger and health. It also presents a new study showing that in 2014, hunger and food insecurity increased health expenditures in the U.S. by $160 billion, which is equivalent to more than a third of the U.S. government’s annual deficit.
- Bread for the World helped form the Vote to End Hunger coalition. The campaign by the same name was launched during World Food Prize week at the Iowa Hunger Summit. The campaign will mobilize grassroots supporters and leaders to urge the 2016 presidential candidates to focus on ending hunger, alleviating poverty, and creating opportunity in the U.S. and around the world.

WORKING TOGETHER TO END HUNGER BY 2030

A CAMPAIGN TO END HUNGER

“They will hunger no more, and thirst no more.”

– Revelation 7:16

As a collective Christian voice for an end to hunger, Bread for the World seeks to provide leadership in the international effort to end hunger by 2030. To support this work, Bread for the World’s board of directors put forth an ambitious plan and launched the Bread Rising campaign to make hunger and poverty a priority for our government by 2017 and virtually end hunger in our country and worldwide by 2030.

Over the past three years, this commitment to the audacious goal of ending hunger by 2030—both in the U.S. and around the world—drove the Bread Rising campaign.

The campaign aimed to strengthen Bread for the World’s advocacy, to equip Bread for the future, and to make hunger and extreme poverty national priorities for the U.S. government.

That meant planning for increased activity in the critical years of 2013 to 2015 leading up to the 2016 election cycle. We had a fundraising goal of $75 million, and we also asked you, our members and friends, to increase your prayer and advocacy.

You responded by committing more than $79 million! Legislative victories in Congress have followed. Thanks to you, Bread for the World is stronger than it has ever been. Now our collective vision is set on taking concrete steps to end chronic hunger by 2030.

We give great thanks to Bread for the World’s members who have given so much in time, prayer, advocacy, and financial support. And we give thanks to God for the vision to see a world without hunger—and to see our role to play in building God’s kingdom on earth.

During the morning briefing on the issues at a church on Lobby Day before visits with legislators on Capitol Hill, the minds of participants were stretched, but their bodies also needed stretching occasionally too.

Bread for the World is grateful to the several individuals, families, and institutions that made generous gifts in 2015 but wish to remain anonymous.

Space does not permit us to recognize all of our members whose generous financial support strengthens our collective Christian voice on behalf of people who are hungry. Our heartfelt gratitude goes out to them.

Contributions to Bread for the World are not tax-deductible because its members lobby Congress on behalf of people who are hungry. Many individuals and families chose to support Bread for the World Institute. Contributions to the Institute are tax-deductible and support research and education, including the publication of the annual Hunger Report and research on maternal and child nutrition and education.
