GENERATIONS

Celebrating 50 years of Ending Hunger

A Personal Invitation

Bread for the World’s experience over the past 50 years shows us that world-changing progress to end hunger is possible, and you can partner with Bread to make this happen. We invite you to commit to an impactful gift to the Generations Campaign. Your generosity will build up the world’s capacity to reduce hunger for this generation and for those to come.

Hunger Is On The Rise

Despite decades of progress in reducing hunger around the globe, the world is now experiencing the worst hunger crisis in a generation. Recent global events, like violent conflicts, the effects of climate change, and the impacts of the pandemic have caused hunger to rise — with women and children particularly at risk.

“After decades of reducing hunger, we’ve gone backwards in the last few years. The only way to really make change at scale is through advocacy with a group like Bread for the World, and there is just no finer organization for impacting public policy than Bread for the World.”

Dave Miner,
retired Eli Lilly executive

“Nothing brings about fundamental change the way that Bread for The World does. So much of what impacts the world’s hungry depends on the policies of our government. This means that my small contribution to Bread for the World has an amazing, outsized impact.”

Kate Pringle,
attorney

Your Impact

Now is the time. Your voice and support are needed to expand this work now and in the coming years. For every dollar you give to Bread, many thousands more in government assistance for families around the world will be realized. Help us advocate to secure funding to serve the nearly 800 million people who are experiencing hunger around the world today.
